Naughty Knot[™] INSTRUCTIONS

Step 1

Slip your right arm through the "loop" of the Naughty $\mathsf{Knot}^\mathsf{TM}$

STEP 2

Slide the "closure" from your backside between your legs, paying attention not to twist, knot or tangle it as you do so (see Step 12). Choose the appropriate "pocket" on the "closure". The appropriate "pocket" on the "closure" is the center-point of the "closure" that is just above your breast line. Fold the remaining portion (see Step 4) back against your chest.

While holding the "closure" with your fingers, pull the "back ribbon" from behind you around your left side and drape it over your left arm. Take the "front ribbon" with your right fingertip and fold it back against your chest so that the angle of the fold slopes down to the left, as shown.

STEP 4

Start folding from the top of the angle that you made with the "front ribbon" from top to bottom like a Chinese fan; alternating forward and backward. The "Chinese fan" folds should be 1.5 cm or less.

STEP 5 & 6

Slide your left index finger through the "pocket" of the "closure" in order to more easily grab and slide the "Chinese fan" through the loop. Push the "Chinese fan" through the "pocket" on the "closure" while simultaneously grabbing it with your left index finger and pull it entirely through the "pocket". Once you pull the "Chinese fan" through the "pocket", you can release your grip on the fan portion and a bow will have been formed.

STEP 7, 8 & 9

Repeat the same action on the "back ribbon" that you performed with the front ribbon by making folds like a "Chinese fan" and sliding it through the same "pocket" as you slid the other ribbon through. This is really like tying a man's bowtie. You can slide it in front of the other bow or behind it; either is acceptable.

STEP 10

Now you have a bow, but you have to tidy it up a bit as it will probably not be even and beautiful just yet. To tidy up the bow, you can grip the ends of the two bows and pull to tighten them. You may want to lengthen the bow. You may also want to shape it a bit with your fingers. We suggest that the bow not be made too large, as it will droop like an elephant's ears. It is not incorrect to leave a large bow, but a smaller bow looks better.

STEP 11 & 12

This is what the bow should look like when it is correctly tied from the front and from the back.

STEP 13 - UNTIE THE BOW:

To untie the bow, simply grab both ends and pull simultaneously. You or your partner can do this! ENJOY!
